

ADING NATURE

MRS. LA GROSS' GARDENS CONTAIN MANY RARE AND BEAUTIFUL SPECIMENS

Everything that grows is the work of nature, but nature unaided sometimes fails with a flower, in giving it distinction and charm of beauty. The dahlia, for example, as unaided nature furnishes it, occupies only a secondary place among the flowers of the garden; but the dahlia of loving, intelligent and constant human care, is a regal flower indeed and surpassed by only one other, the orchid.

To see the dahlia in perfection, one must visit the private gardens, where it is given exclusive attention, and the choicest collection, for its size, is that at the LaGross garden, at 301 North Louise street, corner of Doran, Glendale. It occupies comparatively little space, but is well worth going a long way to see. There are dahlias imported, and dahlias domestic; there are those of the decorative, of the cactus, hybrid-cactus and peony varieties; those of every imaginable color and shade and blending; colors that suggest the deeps and those that make you think of the lucid brightness of the noon-day sun.

Among the specimens is one imported from Holland that took the silver cup at the San Francisco Exposition. This is surely a beauty; it is known as a decorative, in salmon pink, and measures eight inches across. Imagine that for a button-hole! Some of the same kind attain even ten inches across. One of the choicest dahlias owned by Mrs. LaGross is an imported English variety. It is little known in this country, and measures about nine inches across. Still another beauty is a native of the peony variety, and in color is a combination of apricot, orange and gold. It is extremely rare and wonderfully beautiful. Another of the decorative family is a copper bronze, and received the silver cup at the San Francisco dahlia show. There is one of the cactus family, a lavender pink, that received a prize at Pasadena, and a decorative, a canary yellow, is of the most delicate color, while it is perfectly formed. There is another decorative, a crimson-maroon; a peony that captured the prize at Portland, in 1916, a combination of pink, mauve, gold and lavender, from among 800 competitors; a single peony, a red purple, shaded to cream; a decorative, probably the finest lavender ever grown; an imported English decorative, a combination of red and yellow; a true coral peony flower, so delicate you would think it would fade in your hand. Then there is what is known as a watermelon peony in pink, and others are decorative cardinal reds, cactus golden, and still others, orange and red.

But you must see them to appreciate them and understand what the colors and combinations mean, as also the varied forms these trained and nurtured dahlias take.

It is entirely a labor of love with Mrs. LaGross, and she almost lives with her dahlias. For her they have a language, a spirit and a camaraderie, and she will sometimes come out to look at them, and probably converse with them, as early as 4 o'clock in the morning, at the first streak of dawn. Do you wonder that she produces such beauties?

TROPICO AND ANNEXATION

In the past two months there has been a thorough and very fair discussion of all conceivable arguments for and against the annexation of Tropic to Los Angeles. The verdict will be rendered on Wednesday of this week. Few, like Lincoln, can lay aside preconceived opinions and give unbiased consideration to questions, but it is worth the effort.

The evidence produced indicates that taxes must be sufficient to meet the upkeep of the schools and local affairs of Tropic and if a part is diverted to matters in which Tropic has no interest then taxes must be higher to meet this added expense.

The water supply must be paid for by Tropic in any event, and if Owens river water was desired it could not be furnished for years. The post-office will remain as it is indefinitely, we are assured by the postal authorities, regardless of corporate limits.

The people of Tropic must continue to ride for years to come on Glendale car lines, use Glendale telephones, hope to send their children to the Glendale high schools and live in the Glendale Valley.

Tropic is a part of this community, separated from Los Angeles by a mountain range and a mile or more of little improved L. A. river flats, and loyalty to our community demands that annexation to this distant city be defeated.

A. M. DUNCAN.

THE DRESSY AGE

YOU MUST FILL THE VOID LEFT BY THE BOYS WHO MARCHED AWAY

Gents Furnishings. And thereby hangs a tale. It begins in the end of July, 1914, in Europe, spreads to other powers, takes in Uncle Sam—the "gents" begin to disappear, and the furnishings remain. A tale soon told, a tale of war and trade. Gents may be a general term; supposing it is; in ninety-five cases out of a hundred, the young man is the gent when it comes to furnishings. So there you have a situation. How do you deal with it? Let the other gents meet it, and by indirection pay their patriotic tax to war, as the boys are paying theirs directly, and so keep alive the channels of trade.

We live in a dressy age, the dressiest history affords, except perhaps in the Beau Brummel period, and that was an age rather of fops and sissies and simpering fools. We may dress—some of us—for others to admire, but vanity is comparative—and all is vanity, saith the preacher. Granted. Vanity accounts for more than half of the world's trade. But what has that to do with the gents furnishings situation? So far as you personally are concerned, it has no connection at all. It's the other fellow who makes a headlight of his tie and gives the impression, from his socks up, that he is some kind of a moving vegetable.

But what's the use of being a Democracy, if you can't be democratic among the furnishings? We dress experimentally any way, and some day we shall emerge in perfect harmony and fitness, and be the exemplars for the rest of the world. We are moving in that direction now, and although the silk hat is still to be found in profane use, here and there, it is gradually disappearing from the alien pates. Oh, we're a-comin', don't fear. A little good taste, with a pinch of sense, goes a long way—and we have the samples, and plenty of 'em.

To you, who haven't been any nearer the counter of a gents furnishings store for months than the sidewalk side of the window, this may all seem pretty much a midsummer night's dream; but you know that the boys have gone, or are going, and what is the answer? That you fill the void, with your well-known taste and judgment, and be at least a sport for auld lang syne.

Of course you know Faries, H. H. Faries, the man of the Men's Shop, at 1109 Broadway. Funny chap that. Nice fellow, too. Has quite a gift of language, mostly English. He says his business is just as good as it was a year ago, though the way the war has raised prices on him is something fierce—and he himself must bear them. But he does miss his boys, he says. Talks like a father, and he's only a boy himself. Strange how we get the sense of years, when we get a responsibility.

AMBULANCE PILLOW COMMITTEE.

Miss Maybelle Douglas, chairman of the Ambulance Pillow section of the Red Cross, reports that her section completed five ambulance pillows the past week, sold $17.25 worth of paper and old magazines and sold Red Cross Rosies to the amount of $7.65. Miss Douglas has had scores of school children lined up the past summer assisting in the work of collecting newspapers and doing other work for the Red Cross. Since school is to open so soon, this faithful little band of workers will not be able to give so much time to the work. Miss Douglas will have a report published next Monday for the two weeks including the names of the children who have helped.

RED CROSS FRENCH CLASS

The following French conundrum is to be solved by the ladies attending the Red Cross French class for their lesson on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Pulliam Undertaking Parlor, Cremation in Los Angeles.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, August 27.—A new fight in Congress to preserve the rights of married men under the draft law is pending. Fearful lest the soldiers' insurance bill be regarded as sufficient grounds for nullifying dependency claims from the heads of homes, an amendment will be offered to clearly define this point. "The danger is great that tremendous injustice be done," Senator Weeks said. "We must safeguard the married man."

TO REGULATE SALE OF FISH

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BERKELEY, Cal., August 27.—Resolutions asking Herbert Hoover to investigate and regulate the price of milk and the sale of fish in California, are on their way to Washington to-day. Behind the resolutions stand the Berkeley committee on the high cost of living, organized to "do a bit" in the way of cutting down prices of food stuffs. On the fish situation the resolutions declare recent legislation designed to make fish food more plentiful and more popular have not succeeded in their purpose. The food administration is asked to take steps to bring larger quantities of fish—of which California has a plentiful supply—into the markets at reasonable prices.

REMARKABLE RECORD

WRIGHT A. BALDWIN ENGINEER FOR MANY YEARS WITHOUT ACCIDENT

To be an engineer on a railroad for over 35 years and never to have had an accident or trouble of any kind, sounds more like a fairy tale than the honest truth. But this is the actual record of Wright A. Baldwin, who has been continuously in the service of the Santa Fe for an average lifetime, and with the exception of a year or so, when he was a fireman, he has been at the throttle. Mr. Baldwin, better known on the road and among his numerous friends as "All-right Baldwin," yesterday visited his old friend J. L. Grose, of the Grose Vulcanizing Company. Mr. Baldwin does not care to speak about himself or his remarkable record, but Mr. Grose, who has known him for many years, and who was himself at one time an engineer on the road, told a few interesting things about him.

"Not only has Baldwin had no accidents or mishaps," Mr. Grose said; "he has by his foresight and quickness of judgment avoided trouble on the road. By a combination of circumstances a man may be fortunate, but Baldwin has always been right by knowing just what to do at the proper time. There is where his value to the road comes in. Every minute of the time when he is in the cab, he is on the job. Coolness and judgment are the qualities for a railroad engineer, and Baldwin has them developed to a high degree."

"Baldwin has so many credits to his name that he could not wipe them out if he had trouble every day now for the next ten years. That is a record that puts him at the head of the list."

"The first railroad of any consequence in Southern California was a road that ran from San Diego to Redondo. That was between 35 and 40 years ago. Los Angeles wasn't on the map, so far as a railroad was concerned. A little branch line was constructed that ran from the Sisters' Hospital to Santa Monica, and some time later Los Angeles built a spur down to Redondo Junction to connect with the road down at the beach, which was called the main line, and the locomotives had to be brought around by way of Cape Horn. Then a line was built to Pasadena and Lamanda Park, and that was about all the railroad we had at that time."

"It was in these early days that young Baldwin appeared on the scene. He came from Canada, located in what is now the city of Los Angeles, and went to work in the construction of a road that is now part of the great Santa Fe system. He took a job as a fireman, and at the end of the first year he was made an engineer, and from that day to this it has been his occupation."

"Baldwin is well known to all the officials of the Santa Fe road, from Mr. Wells, the general manager, down. More than that, they are all personal friends of his, not only because of his reliability, but also because of his straightforwardness in connection with the service."

"His seniority in the service gives him the privilege of choosing his run, and he has had all of them. He has taken the fast overlands, and gone over the road at the highest speed known on the Santa Fe. But when he wants a change of scenery, all he has to do is to ask for it. Just now he is running the local passenger between San Bernardino and Los Angeles and 'round the kite to Santa Ana."

FREE FRENCH FOR ARMY SELECTIVES

All men selected for military service will be given free lessons in French by Mrs. Nanno Woods. Men from Glendale, Tropic, Eagle Rock and surrounding districts are cordially invited to take advantage of this offer. As the mobilization of selected men will be delayed until the end of November, there will be two and a half months during which French can be studied. These free lessons, to be given two evenings a week, will help greatly towards obtaining a thorough foundation in simple French. All selected men interested in their personal military advancement are invited to meet at the Glendale Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening, August 30, at 7:45 o'clock, when the first free French lesson will be given. Relatives and friends, and the public generally, will be admitted to this introductory lesson. After that, attendance will be limited to men selected for military service.

OBJECTS TO GAS RATES

CITY MANAGER WATSON WRITES TO RAILROAD COMMISSION CONCERNING DECISION

City Manager T. W. Watson, in accordance with instructions given him by the City Council concerning the increase in the gas rate, has written the Railroad Commission a letter in which he calls attention to the Council's dissatisfaction with the Commission's decision and submits the following facts, on which the objection is based:

That the need for such a raise is so little apparent that the Commission reduced the rates to a large majority of consumers affected by said decision.

That the differential is being placed in effect between Los Angeles and Glendale, the latter being a closely built up community, and also on the ground that there is an agreement between the City of Glendale and the Southern California Gas Company that no difference in price would ever exist between the two places.

That the abrogation of the terms of the contract between the City of Glendale and the Southern California Gas Company whereby the city is purchasing natural gas at 15 cents per thousand cubic feet, when this was purely a voluntary contract on the part of the gas company, and to the knowledge of the City of Glendale no dissatisfaction as to the terms of said contract had been expressed to the City of Glendale.

That the City of Glendale objects to any action whatever being taken by the Railroad Commission toward altering rates without full notice being given to the officials of all interested communities of the time and place of hearing, and of the possibility that rates will be altered.

And that the City of Glendale demands emphatically that no future action be taken by the Railroad Commission toward altering any utility rates in the City of Glendale without notice to the city of such hearing, and without an opportunity being given this city to be fully heard.

A letter has been sent to each of the following municipalities on the same subject: San Fernando, Burbank, Tropic, Eagle Rock, Pasadena, S. Pasadena, Vernon, Alhambra, Huntington Park and Inglewood, in which appears the following paragraph:

"Inasmuch as said order affects gas rates in your city also, we are directed to advise you of the board's action, and if this matter appeals to you as it does to us, to request that you communicate with the Commission expressing your views with regard to the said order."

Camp Notes

It is reported that vaccination with the various serums will begin to-day and it's possible that the boys will not be in as high spirits as they were yesterday.

The shortage of fruits, which was reported last week, no longer exists, as large quantities were sent in by friends as soon as the need was made public.

Harry Chandler of the 21st was a Glendale visitor for a few hours.

GLENDALE AND THE GAS COMPANY

The City of Glendale might find instruction in the example of the City of Los Angeles touching the raising of the gas rate. The latter municipality proposes to proceed before the Federal Court in its pending injunction suits, in an effort to compel the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Southern California Gas Company to refund approximately $287,500 to gas consumers, this amount representing the difference between the 64½-cent rate fixed by the city more than two years ago and the 68-cent rate that has been charged pending a final adjudication of the cases.

President Fulton Lane of the Board of Public Utilities said on Saturday: "More than two years ago the two gas companies contested the city's rate of 64½ cents for 815 B. T. U. gas and succeeded in securing the issuance of a temporary restraining order pending the determination of the fairness of the 68-cent rate by the Railroad Commission. In the meantime the two companies have been allowed to charge the straight 68-cent rate for this mixed gas."

President Lane pointed out that the Railroad Commission in its recent decision holds that the straight 68-cent rate charged by the two companies is unjust and unreasonable. If 68 cents is unreasonable and unjust for Los Angeles, 80 cents is still more unjust and unreasonable for Glendale.

In its recent decision the Railroad Commission fixes a sliding scale of rates ranging from 68 cents down to 45 cents, based on the amount of gas consumed. This sliding scale is entirely different from the straight 68-cent rate for all consumers alike, whether little or much gas is used. If then the Railroad Commission's decision opens the way for Los Angeles to continue the fight and gives the prospect of winning it for the refund of the money that has been impounded, it should give the same hope to Glendale, in having the existing rate of 68 cents retained.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

If physical culture is needed for those who bear arms in defense of the country why should it not be applied also to the soldiers of the business and professional world, the men in the commercial trenches? If a certain number of our citizens are compelled to go through a rigid course of physical training, why should not all others be called upon to follow suit?

The soft muscled clerk, the devitalized student, the overworked business man—they need awakening. Now, in many instances they are but little more than human ciphers, 25, 50 or 75 per cent. men. With a little properly directed exercise they could be fitted for the ranks of the 100 per centers.

Six hours weekly, two hours for three days each week; would put the average flabby muscled, sedentary worker in fine shape. It would square his shoulders, stiffen his backbone, put some energy and enthusiasm into his makeup. It would make a real man of him.

Every man who is not in training should begin now. If he can not train with other men let him follow a system of home training. Hard muscles, strong stable nerves, high grade endurance—in short a physique as "hard as nails"—should be the ambition of every sensible man.—Physical Culture.

OPPOSITION TO GOMPERS DEVELOPING IN A. F. OF L.

What promises to be a bitter struggle within the American Federation of Labor, with the leadership of Samuel Gompers possibly at stake, is developing as a result of the decision of Gompers and the executive officials not to take part in the Russian-called international Socialist conference, September 9 to 16. The American Federation of Labor, Gompers stated, will not participate in the Stockholm conference principally on patriotic grounds, believing it might prove embarrassing to the Government. Gompers maintains the decision will remain unchanged despite the decision of the British Labor Congress to take part.

It is admitted the British action will add to the munition of the Socialists and pacifists in and out of the American Federation of Labor, who have been vociferous in denouncing Gompers for his co-operation with the Government through the Council of National Defense. The decision of the British, it is asserted, will widen the breach between the so-called radical and conservative factions in the Federation. Gompers is leading the faction in the Federation which believes that only by co-operating with the government in the war and the temporary sacrifice of some of labor's prerogatives, can labor become a truly great power in the readjustment. The Socialists and radicals believe the surrender of labor's privileges will weaken the movement.

The result of the struggle is now a question of time. The Workmen's peace council, which numbers some 500,000 members, most of them members of the American Federation of Labor, is centering its activities around New York, but intends to carry them afterward throughout the country. The leaders of the council assert there is widespread dissatisfaction with Gompers' policy. Gompers maintains that this dissatisfaction is to be found mainly among the foreign element.

NO SERIOUS LACK OF FARM LABORERS

That while there is a nation-wide shortage of labor in all lines of industry, there has not been any serious losses of crops because of inability of California farmers to secure needed farm labor, is the text of a report made to Governor William D. Stephens as chairman of the State Council of Defense by Professor R. L. Adams, Federal and State Farm Labor Agent, following a complete survey of the farm labor situation throughout the State. The report covers two months of activities and investigations by the State Farm Labor Bureau, recently installed with headquarters at the College of Agriculture of the University of California.

According to Professor Adams' report to Governor Stephens, county farm labor agents, who are keeping in touch with local situations, have been installed in 39 counties of the State. The remaining counties not having farm labor agents are located in mountain or cattle raising districts of the State. During the two months that the State Farm Labor Bureau has been active, Professor Adams reports that there has been no serious accumulation of requests for farm laborers.

In his report Professor Adams takes up more than a dozen phases of the farm labor situation including a reported shortage of beet field workers in southern California where sugar companies allege the labor shortage may cause a heavy loss of sugar beet crops. In commenting upon the sugar beet situation, Professor Adams states that a sufficient number of beet field laborers are available, but that they refuse to work at the wage offered by beet growers. In this connection the State Farm Labor Agent alleges that in an effort to keep down the price of labor, several southern California sugar companies have notified sugar beet growers of that section that they will refuse to buy the crops of any grower who pays more than $2.50 a day, without board, to workers.

Among the recent farm labor surveys made by the Farm Labor Bureau, was one in Alameda county, where 30 automobiles were pressed into service and approximately 900 farmers visited for the purpose of finding out their labor needs. Of the 900 farmers called upon, only 41 needed additional farm labor and their total demands for help aggregated only 148 persons. Investigators who made the Alameda county survey reported that none of the many farmers visited said anything regarding his inability to get farm help.

In Imperial and Fresno counties, where it was reported to the State Council of Defense that serious farm labor shortages were threatened, Professor Adams reports that growers' associations have taken steps to bring in farm labor at the time when they will be needed later in the harvesting season. Fresno fruit growers, it is said, have appointed a field labor agent to recruit farm help in other parts of the State for the fruit and raisin picking season, which starts August 15. In Imperial county growers have subscribed to a large fund which will be used to bring in a large number of laborers from other parts of the State when they are wanted for the cotton picking season, which starts about September 15. It is pointed out by Professor Adams that large number of farm laborers now engaged in crop harvesting in other sections will be available for both the Fresno and Imperial districts when their late crop harvests start there.

Data gathered by the state farm labor agents from a dozen other States in various parts of the country show that there is a serious farm labor shortage throughout the nation. In Texas it is said that growers face a heavy loss of their cotton crop because of a general exodus of negroes. Missouri, Kentucky, Ohio, New York, and other states also report that it has been necessary to press into service high school boys, college students and even grammar school pupils to aid in harvesting farm crops.

In reports to Professor Adams, county farm agents call attention to irresponsible methods on the part of many farmers whom they are endeavoring to aid. In numerous instances it is said that farmers have called upon country farm labor agents to supply them with help and when the needed help has been secured for delivery, the farmers have advised the farm labor agents that they already had secured other workers. In several cases, it is recorded that farm labor agents have gone to considerable expense to secure needed farm laborers and have hired conveyances to transport the workers to the farm where they reported as needed, only to find out upon their arrival that the farmer had employed workers from other sources.

A RETRACTION

High School Law
Glendale, Aug. 25, 1917.

Mr. J. B. Treadwell, Tropic, Cal.

An article signed by A. L. Bryant, President of the Board of Trustees of the Glendale Union High School, appeared in the Tropic Sentinel of August 23, 1917, and stated that in case Tropic Consolidated with Los Angeles the parents of Los Angeles students would have to pay about $140.00 per year tuition if they attended the Glendale Union High School. This, under the old law, was the case, but the 1915 Statutes changed the law governing this, and since 1915 the "state and county money follow the student" and "no charge for tuition shall be made in any high school district in this state." The matter of school children from one school district going to another is left entirely with the school board of both districts and to the county school superintendent. This is the interpretation of the law now governing high schools by the county school superintendent and the county counsel.

A. L. BRYANT,
President Board of Trustees of Glendale Union High School.

COM. SECS. AT REDONDO

CHURCH TELLS HOW THE FRATERNITY WERE ENTERTAINED AT BEACH CITY

By Glendale's Com. Sec.

"Redondo" is both a question and its answer. In ancient Latin Redondo might be freely translated "Back Where?"

Of course the answer to that conundrum is "Back to Redondo!" Why not, some time, if we could enjoy our convention as we did Saturday?

It is a matter of more or less publicity that Redondo Beach—except along its crescent miles of ocean front, and the partly developed Salt Lake within its midst—was "bone-dry" last Saturday. It had rounded up its six audacious boot-leggers the lucky Friday night before. Besides, the Com. Secs., officially at least, have no dealings with Pom. Sec. or any of that ilk.

Let us begin the history of our pleasant experience with a rising vote of thanks to the ever generous P. E. for providing a ten-o'clock special car with a one-hour schedule via Gardena and Hermosa, a trolley ride well worth the taking. Perhaps you might see, also, that white horse up on the hillside, looking down, and a red-headed girl gazing up, at one another. Just before starting time, Glendale's Com. Sec. was standing at Gate 4, in the magnificent L. A. P. E. station, absorbing Minister Gerard's fascinating story in the Examiner, telling how the boastful Prussian Crown Prince was trying to terrify a beautiful American girl with his plan (if Daddy Kaiser did not) for crushing Europe and America pronto, after he took the throne. Pleasantly interrupting such a nightmare a cheerful voice exclaimed, "Hello, Church of Glendale." The glad hand was given and taken by four Com. Secs., all newspaper men.

Said he from Rialto, "This is one of our newest Com. Secs.—swiftly put on the map by the Glendale News, noted for the space unstintedly given to the Southern California Com. Sec. movement. Among many exchanges, the Glendale paper is always read." Thanks for those words, Sir Knight of the Quill Hostels. Rialto is surely fortunate in having such an editorial guide, philosopher and friend.

Aside from her permanent attractions, too numerous to catalogue, the present magnet is the great and only endless horseshoe wharf, a monument of initiative, beauty and usefulness, the unique beach play spot of the world. It well merits the unprecedented dedication lately given it by Little Mary Pickford, the World's Movie Sweetheart.

From its spacious sun-parlor as a pivotal observatory, we noted a forest of "fringing bamboos waving around, hobbing and swaying up and down, in ways that were more than peculiar. Fish without wings were flying in all directions through the air, but generally landed on the concrete wharf, all around its vast bow, for six hundred feet or more. Often half a dozen lines were good-naturedly untangled. Perhaps nowhere on earth could that scene be duplicated. It is all explained by the miraculous draft of fishes which for days has been reducing the high cost of breathing to thousands of people, and making a plutocrat of the fishing tackle and bait vendor who lives on that wharf. Of many big catches recorded, the best was 290 in less than 5 hours, about one a minute.

The ways of Providence are past finding out—till after the fact—beautifully illustrated by "The Carnation City."

They made Redondo for fishers of men.

As her growth and verve testify; And now make them all fishers of fish.

Which her teeming waves will supply.

The big "corn-fed" mackerel led the monster piscatorial procession down the beach. Then the units of the countless army grew smaller and smaller, and will soon disappear into the depths whence they came.

Redondo gives another illustration of the ancient saying: "When the half-gods go, the gods arrive."

Already the pursuing yellow tails are coming in, and the rapid sport of the mackerel fisher will give way for the big sport of those who can land the yellow tail gods of the seas.

After a fine Dutch-treat luncheon at the Casino, "a faithful reproduction from Heidelberg of the 16th century," Secretary Rice, our hospitable and ubiquitous host, cordially welcomed us to Redondo, inviting us all to remain after business hours as guests of the city for a swim in Redondo's $200,000 "hot-cold-salt-fresh-water plunge," then for dinner at the crack hotel, followed by an extra good movie show for those who would, and dancing ad lib. in the perfect pavilion. All of which was accepted and enjoyed by all who could remain—among whom this scribe regretfully was not.

But Redondo's affable and Beau Brummel-like Com. Sec. started something new and useful. Each person at table was invited, without further ceremony, to rise in rotation, tell name, location, with something of the home city's chief attractions. It became most interesting. In spite of urgent calls of "louder," this scribe could not help losing many good things, as testified by the (Continued on Page 4)

WAR DEPARTMENT PUTS BAN ON AMERICAN OFFICERS' SWORDS

The traditional sword will not clank at the heels of American army officers in France. This is the first time in American history the officer's sword has been abandoned in battle.

The French and British banned swords for their officers during the first year of the war. America, now in, follows suit by official order of the War Department.

The reason is simple and sufficient. During the first year of the war French and British officers were easily distinguishable from their men by their swords, uniforms and insignia and the Boche sharpshooters concentrated their fire on them with deadly effect.

The idea ever since has been to make commanding officers look as much like enlisted men as possible. If you happened along the front in France and met General Haig, commander-in-chief of the British field forces, you couldn't tell him from a private until you got close enough to shake hands with him.

The insignia of French, British and American officers on the western front now cannot be seen farther away than the whites of their eyes. They wear the same service uniforms and carry the same arms as the enlisted men of their commands.

The War Department has employed experts to devise cloth colors, and button and insignia material to make the troops as invisible as possible. The buttons on the army field service uniform are dark bronze. The insignias on an officer's coat are small bronze, dull silver or gold devices which cannot be seen across the street.

The only difference between the insignia on the collar of an officer and on that of an enlisted man is that the enlisted man's letters are on a disc while an officer's are in a straight line and separated.

Regular army insignia on the collar is "U. S." and on the reserves, "U. S. R."

The arm, corps or staff department a man serves in also are shown on the collar. A general staff officer wears a U. S. coat-of-arms superimposed on a five-pointed silver star.

In the Adjutant-General's department the device is a gold shield. The Inspector-General's department men wear a sword and fasces crossed and wreathed in gold with the inscription "Droit Et Evant."

Judge Advocate General's department, a gold sword and pen crossed and wreathed. Quartermaster's corps, gold sword and key crossed on a wheel surmounted by a spread eagle. The rim of the wheel is blue enamel set with stars.

The Medical Corps wears a caduceus of gold. A dental surgeon, the same, superimposed in the center of a bronze monogram bearing the letters "D. C." The Ordnance Department, a shell and flame of gold. Signal corps, two crossed signal flags with a gold torch in the center. Cavalry, crossed gold sabres. Field artillery, two crossed field guns, in gold, with regimental number in the upper angle. Coast artillery, two crossed cannons with raised oval center of red enamel with gold projectile point upon it.

Infantry, two crossed gold rifles. Philippine scouts, the same except that "P" replaces the regimental number. Porto Rican regiments the same, with the letters "P. R." in the upper angle.

MESSAGE FROM FRENCH MOTHERS TO MOTHERS OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS

An open letter has been addressed by the mothers of France to the mothers of American soldiers. To the 500,000 American soldier boys now landed or soon to be landed on French soil, 500,000 of the best French homes are opened. To each soldier will be allotted a French mother, a French father, French brothers and sisters, and a French home. To this home the American boy may freely go whenever absence can be obtained. Should he become sick or be wounded, this French family will visit him, care for him, write to his people at home, will nurse him through convalescence, will take the place as best they can of father, mother and family. In all respects he will be treated as an honored son of the house. Thus the French mothers hope to repay in some degree their debt to the mothers of America. "Fear not, dear American mothers, your sons will be as dear to us as our own sons." Thus ties of friendship and love will be cemented between 500,000 American homes and 500,000 French homes. This letter, in its original French, will be used as the reading lesson at the Red Cross French class on Wednesday afternoon.

COM. SECS. AT REDONDO

The Venetian Venice, the cheerful city, the playground for the workers of all nations.

San Fernando, uniquely blessed by having Los Angeles for its suburbs on all sides. San Fernando may yet extend her lines and become like the Dutch farmer who disclaimed being a land hog; all he wanted was the territory on the four sides of him, because he could get along with himself better than with the best of neighbors.

Sunland boasted the highest efficiency in soldiers. Not one was refused enlistment.

Ontario has a few oranges, a few lemons, a few walnuts, a few cows and things—really about the best-balanced city in S. C. It also has a few high mountains and a few deep mountain springs. Its happy people fear neither a freeze nor a hot wave.

"Hermosa Beach? Everything! Can you beat it?"

Redondo Beach: "The finest harbor in California."

Redlands: "All the talking points of California—except a little old ocean."

Pasadena: "No brag. Come and see us."

Long Beach: "Public spirit, loyalty, ambition to build there a real city."

Anaheim: "Best town in the state. Read what is said in the August number of the Salt Lake's Arrowhead Magazine and Guide Book, about Orange county."

But even in that truthful compendium the half has never been told about the prolific Carob trees, together with the multifarious improvement associations, boards of trade or chambers of commerce in the Kingdom of Orange. Many Orange county people were at the convention, and though not braced up by secretarial buttons, each did a good bit for the home of their hearts.

One of that loyal legion, Secretary Wilson of Newport Beach, extended a cordial invitation to hold our September convention at his town, one of the most talked about in Southern California because of county harbor improvement and other things of general interest, besides its unsurpassed local attractions and fascinations beyond compare.

Needless to say, we unanimously accepted the tempting offer. In the mild September, Brother Wilson will have a visitation and, without doubt, this Newport of the West will live up to its name as a center of pleasing social activities, with promise of commercial greatness when its hour shall strike.

"Gardena—that's all!" Secretary Rice then said with conviction: "Now I know more about places, people and things."

He introduced Mr. P. J. Watrous, of Lord and Thomas, New York, and Mr. Arthur G. Vernon, specialists in city and business building. They gave what might be termed a co-operative talk on advertising, new to some and interesting to all. After giving them a hearty vote of thanks, the chairman, Mr. Rice, was authorized to appoint a committee to confer with the advertising experts and report at our next meeting.

Chairman Rice raised a general smile of appreciation and pleasurable anticipation by saying: "This has been a most unusual meeting—not one word from Father Dudley, for which everybody is watching and waiting."

That tall sycamore of and sagamore of the Occident nodded his plumed head and arose with the genial smile always on tap, the un-failing precursor of some good things for our general benefit.

He advocated a special school for instruction for Com. Secs. to be held in Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce for three days in February, perhaps; time not yet set. All secretaries and their assistants invited—no expense therefor. The very best instructors provided for practical solution of Com. Sec. problems. Details later. It would also be open to all members of Chambers of Commerce holding the common membership card showing that they were in good standing. That membership card is an invitation to make frequent use of Room E in L. A. Chamber of Commerce, a sort of Com. Sec. club room free of expense, where you can meet your friends, write, read, consult maps and statistics, and enjoy many other privileges and comforts, in the same building which contains the great Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce exhibit, and where interesting lectures on California, her products and development, are given daily. He assured us that Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is deeply interested in all other commercial bodies, and wished to be of use to them in every available way.

He suggested that two letters be used in connection with those membership invitation cards: one enclosing the card to members in good standing, the other telling what is missed by not having such a card, sent to members who are behind with their dues, and to non-members as inducement to join the local chamber of commerce. For those very desirable cards a vote of thanks was given to Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and to Father Dudley, who was also appointed delegate to the General Convention of Commercial Secretaries at Chicago, in September.

Note.—Glendale's Com. Sec. was given three opportunities to talk.

Substance: Glendale is really The City of Homes. She has practically all desirable fruits and flowers, the best city government, schools and churches, good water, good light and fuel, good stores, good amusements, including patriotic out-door singing by the people Saturday nights. In a word, Glendadians are so well satisfied with home conditions that, in spite of Glendale's manifold advantages as an industrial center, many of them do not encourage the coming of factories and moving picture studios, or other enterprises which might mar the present perfect condition under which the prosperous may live long and happily.

Item. The suggestion of patriotic singing by the people was enthusiastically applauded.

Item. After we adjourned, Mr. Muhleman, a prominent business man of Redondo, and director of that Chamber of Commerce, came up and, giving the glad hand, said that his good friend Mattison B. Jones of Glendale had requested that he personally greet Glendale's Com. Sec., a courtesy gracefully extended and most highly appreciated.

Item. What Redondo doesn't know about progressive business and business progression, not to mention her cordial hospitalities, would make a very small book. Furthermore, she is to be congratulated on her Com. Sec.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

For homemade fly paper melt one part resin with one part castor oil in double boiler and spread on tough, stout paper.

When you cook green vegetables and wish to have them look green when served, let them cook with the cover off.

When preparing grapefruit for the table cut out the center, fill the cavity with maple sirup and let it stand in the ice box for an hour before waiting.

It is often difficult to remove a cake from a pan without breaking it. After the cake has been baked the required length of time, place the pan containing same on a wet cloth and let it stand for a few minutes. Then run a knife around between the edge of the cake and the pan and you will have no further trouble.

An excellent way to finish arm-holes in a fine lingerie waist is to sew the sleeves in by machine; then buttonhole around the edges with either a coarse thread or soft floss.

Before washing lace collars baste them closely on a piece of white cloth. They will not be stretched nor torn. If no starch is put in them they will look like new.

CHILDREN'S SAYINGS

A certain little girl was discovered by her mother engaged in a spirited encounter with a small friend, who had got considerably worsted in the engagement.

"Don't you know, dear," said the mother, "that it is very wicked to behave so? It was Satan that put it into your head to pull Elsie's hair."

"Well, perhaps it was," the child admitted, "but kicking her shins was entirely my own idea."—Exchange.

A visitor to a certain Brooklyn household was duly amazed by the wonderful likeness between the twins. "Why," she gasped, "I never saw two children look so much alike.
